IMPROVING THE QUALITY OF LIFE OF PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES

BACKGROUND

Over the last 30 years, the U.S. Government has contributed more than $155 million in assistance to persons with disabilities in Vietnam. Since the establishment of the global Leahy War Victims Fund in 1989, the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) has worked to increase access to a wide variety of programs benefiting people with disabilities in conflict-affected countries worldwide. In Vietnam, U.S. assistance has addressed medical and social needs, improved disability policies, and reduced physical and social barriers. USAID is currently focused on providing services for persons with significant disabilities in areas heavily sprayed with Agent Orange during the U.S.-Vietnam war. This work contributes to both countries' efforts to overcome war legacies and strengthen the bilateral partnership.

IMPACT

In Vietnam, USAID has improved the quality of life of one million persons with disabilities over the past three decades. In 2022, USAID provided direct support to over 46,000 persons with disabilities, improved rehabilitation and social services, strengthened policy and advocacy for disability rights, and strengthened the ability of local partners to sustain these efforts.
