BACKGROUND

More than a decade since the conclusion of ten years of civil war and five years of civil conflict, Burundi remains one of the least developed countries in the world, with alarming levels of hunger and malnutrition that have been exacerbated by political crisis. USAID/Burundi engages with international donors and local stakeholders to improve the health status and social conditions of the population, reduce the high rates of chronic malnutrition, mitigate the drivers of conflict, enhance democratic governance and human rights, and promote economic growth.

In May 2006, the Government of Burundi announced that free health services would be provided to children under five and pregnant women. Since the policy was implemented, the percentage of women delivering in health facilities has increased from 61% to 74% with 99% of women presenting for at least one antenatal care (ANC) visit during the course of their pregnancies. ANC remains the key point of entry for counselling and testing pregnant women and their families for HIV and providing prevention of mother to child transmission (PMTCT) and antiretroviral treatment (ART) services. It is also the primary point of entry for malaria prevention services including long-lasting insecticide treated net distribution and intermittent preventive treatment of malaria in pregnancy (IPTP). Burundi's National Reproductive Health Policy now includes newborn care as a critical strategy in reducing child mortality. A central feature of this policy included scaling up services to prevent mother-to-child transmission of HIV.

Despite this progress, the overall picture of health in Burundi remains one of concern. This situation is associated mainly with the fragility of the health system, the heavy burden of communicable diseases, the vulnerability of mothers, children and adolescents, and the role of the determinants of health (including very high rates of acute and chronic malnutrition, 6% and 58% respectively, in children between 0-5). The most prevalent diseases in the epidemiological profile are communicable diseases that particularly affect the health of pregnant women and children, the most vulnerable population groups. The most prevalent diseases in this category are malaria, HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis, diarrhoeal diseases, vaccine-preventable diseases and acute respiratory infections.

BASIC FUNCTION OF THE POSITION

The Reproductive and Maternal and Child Health (RMCH) Advisor shall advise USAID/Burundi on the full range of MCH and Family Planning (FP) activities, including advising on strategic planning and oversight of activities to improve maternal, child and reproductive health outcomes across the USAID/Burundi portfolio.

The incumbent shall contribute to the team's ability to achieve results by providing programmatic and technical expertise for the MCH and RH components of the USAID/Burundi program. This position is cross-cutting and will serve as a subject matter expert on MCH and RH issues across several funding streams and programs, including the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR), the President's Malaria Initiative (PMI), and serve as the principal point of contact for MCH and FP/RH funding and activities. The RMCH Advisor will serve as an expert and provide inputs and oversight on programming including prevention of transmission of HIV between mothers and their infants, pediatric HIV programs, intermittent treatment of malaria in pregnancy, family planning, and the health of pregnant mothers and children under five.

The RMCH Advisor interacts with the USAID health team as well as technical representatives of other USG agencies, Government of Burundi counterparts, international donors and other key development partners. He/she may serve as a Contracting/Agreement Officer's Representative (COR/AOR) or Activity Manager for USAID/Burundi health activities.

The incumbent will work in a USG foreign assistance program that requires knowledge, experience, maturity, and an ability to function independently under a demanding and frequently changing environment. The position is located in the USAID Limited Presence Country Office located in Bujumbura, Burundi.

The RMCH Advisor will not directly supervise staff but will advise other technical specialists on aspects of their portfolio related to MCH.

Major Duties and Responsibilities

Burundi receives approximately $5M per year in MCH and FP funding, in addition to funding for malaria and HIV/AIDS which impacts health of women and children. The RMCH Advisor guides the programmatic and technical development and oversight of the USAID/Burundi maternal and child health and family planning activities, including activities on HIV prevention and treatment that impact maternal and child health outcomes.

Specific Responsibilities:

He/she will manage responsibilities including:

Programmatic Oversight and Coordination (20%)

- Serve as COR/AOR or Activity Manager for designated activities. In this context the incumbent is responsible for all aspects of project management for her/his assigned activities, including technical guidance, reviewing reports, and work plan approval.
- Monitor the performance of health activities through regular site visits, review of technical reports and regular interaction with implementing partners •
- Undertake regular site visits of implementing partners and maintain regular communication to ensure that activity implementation proceeds in accordance with approved work plans; that planned inputs and outputs are produced in schedule; and that pipelines are monitored and reviewed with partners at least quarterly.

- Engage in coordination meetings with key counterparts and officials.
- Liaise with implementing partners to jointly identify solutions to program implementation challenges.
- Participate in evaluations of MCH and RH activities and ensure their inclusion in the Burundi's Monitoring, Evaluation and Learning plan.

Technical Leadership (40%)

- Maintain state of the art knowledge on key MCH and RH interventions, including PMTCT as a component of the health of both mother and infant.
- Provide technical assistance and inputs to USAID/Burundi, other USG staff, Government of Burundi counterparts, USG staff, implementing partners, and other institutions in the design, implementation, and evaluation of MCH and RH programs.
- Participate in and provide technical assistance to MCH and RH health-focused technical working groups, task teams, workshops and campaigns. Such groups may include serving as a key focal point for Family Planning 2020.
- Ensure that USG-supported programs focused on MCH and RH take into account the organizational, technical and human dimensions of sustainability.
- Ensure that the Mission is contributing to the Sustainable Development Goals related to women and girls.
- Interface within USAID/Burundi and with USAID/Washington on the mission's MCH and RH portfolio.
- Coordinate the analysis and synthesis of key technical lessons learned and best practice recommendations to integrate across all health activities.
- Ensure that USAID's MCH and RH health activities are adequately tailored to the Burundian context •

Program Planning and Reporting (40%)

- Assist in developing annual planning documents including the Operational Plan, Country Operational Plan, and Malaria Operational Plan. Prepare analyses and estimates of annual funding needs for MCH and RH activities.
- The advisor will also be responsible for submitting final draft of MCH and RH-related sections of the Mission's annual reports. The Advisor will liaise with USAID/W technical experts to inform them of Mission health activities and coordinate mutual activities accordingly.
- Monitor obligations, commitments, expenditures and results against targets for programs and activities aimed at improving MCH and RH.
- Participates in Mission Quarterly Financial Reviews and Portfolio Reviews representing the MCH and RH activities under his/her preview and providing recommendations for future investments.
