

USAID World AIDS Day Photo Contest “Increasing Impact through Transparency, Accountability and Partnerships”

USAID World AIDS Day 2015 Photo Contest Winner. Photo Credit: Organization for Public Health Interventions and Development

The U.S. Government theme for World AIDS Day 2017 is “Increasing Impact through Transparency, Accountability, and Partnerships.” There is no better time than World AIDS Day to recommit ourselves to achieving epidemic control. This year, we celebrate the tremendous progress made on a global scale in accelerating and expanding access to HIV prevention, treatment and care services. However, we continue to look to the future to reach sustainable solutions for ending AIDS as a global health threat.

USAID is looking for photos that support the theme of “Increasing Impact through Transparency, Accountability, and Partnerships.” Taking action now is a necessary step to controlling the HIV/AIDS epidemic. USAID, in collaboration with international partners and local governments, is working tirelessly to achieve this goal. Help us showcase your stories of “increasing impact” and ultimately, acting to achieve epidemic control. The winning photos will be featured on the USAID website and on USAID Global Health social media channels.
