USAID/Afghanistan is seeking an individual for the position of Information Assistant (Press and Publication) in the Office of the Director (DIR), Development, Outreach and Communication (DOC) Office.

BASIC FUNCTION OF THE POSITION:

Under the supervision of the Deputy DOC Advisor and through him/her incumbent serves as the Information Assistant (Social Media and Web Manager) for the USAID/Afghanistan website and social media channels, with full responsibility for managing and implementing the Mission's online strategy. He/she selects, edits, publishes, and manages digital content in order to communicate USAID activities to the public via the Internet and social media, applying online marketing best practices to ensure content targets key audiences. He/she develops strong knowledge of mission activities, USAID project goals and USG website guidelines. He/she acts proactively to identify potential and actual web content usable by USAID webpages and social media. He/she creates monthly reports of website and social media activity, using this data to refine the Mission's online strategy.

Website and Social Media Design, Editing and Management

The Information Assistant (Social Media and Web Manager) is responsible for the entire Web and social media presence of USAID Afghanistan. The Information Assistant create contents and updates the mission website and social media sites daily with the aim of providing the public accurate and timely information about U.S. policy and Mission activities.

He/she coordinates within USAID and with other USG agencies to determine target audiences and appropriate materials that further USAID policy in Afghanistan. He/she sources and creates textual, graphic, visual and audio content and edits photos for placement on website and social media. Working with DOC and mission leadership, he/she develops an online strategy using marketing best practices to reach target. He/she ensures information is accurate and timely, and pertinent to Afghan-U.S. relations and USG programs and activities in Afghanistan. During VIP visits, crises, and other intense-information situations, continuously updates the webpage with appropriate, accurate information.

Works with Senior DOC Officer and Deputy DOC Advisor to ensure all website content supports U.S. programs and activities and furthers USAID strategic goals and objectives. Regularly reviews all content, deleting or archiving old material. Liaises directly with Washington colleagues to ensure website adheres to USAID worldwide Content Management System (CMS) format and technology standards, and to solve technical problems related to CMS.

Works directly with Mission and Agency IT sections to ensure website compliance with pertinent regulations. Responsible for promoting public and Agency awareness of the website and social media channels.

Design and Dissemination of Information Products

In close coordination with DOC management and staff, develops, designs, and distributes printed and electronic information materials supporting USAID strategic goals and programs.

Retrieves from digital sources, and reformats for local use Washington-generated information products and other official texts. Formats and electronically distributes and files all USAID/Afghanistan generated press-releases and information materials. He/she independently locates for links, or creates in-house text, graphic, visual and audio content. He/she ensures information is accurate and timely, and pertinent to Afghan-U.S. relations and USG programs and activities in Afghanistan.

Organizes content thematically, adds interest-enhancing photos and graphics, as well as key links and contact information for readers' further information, and formats newsletter in an appealing and easy-to-read design. Creates original information products to support DOC and USAID programs and goals, including brochures, handouts, etc. In close consultation with Senior DOC Officer and D/DOC Advisor, selects Washington-generated materials (such as e-journals or IIP publications) for translation into local languages. Oversees translation of products, layout and design of local language version and local reprinting. Recommends and supervises the distribution and electronic archiving of all products mentioned above to public target audiences and Mission colleagues. Personally distributes products electronically.

Media Outreach and Monitoring

In addition to responsibility for distribution of press releases mentioned above, this position supports all aspects of USAID media relations at the request of DOC management.

Assists with invitations and logistical arrangements for media events for Mission officials and high-ranking USG visitors. Monitors and prepares briefings on news stories and trends as requested by DOC, including news clips for Mission Director, Ambassador or visiting VIPs. Alerts Senior DOC Officer to interesting reporting and/or blocking trends on Internet media and "blogs." In the absence of the FSN Information Specialist, monitors media for potential "media placement" opportunities.

Digital Information Management and Innovation

Creates and maintains tailored, current, and accurate electronic distribution lists for DOC Office products based on target audience fields of interest. Manages lists in Microsoft Outlook Contacts, Intranet E-Contacts, or other professional software. Serves as the section's contact database expert, providing colleagues guidance/instruction on software as required.

Continually monitors web and digital media trends for innovative ways to improve DOC Office information outreach and, particularly, the multimedia and interactive content of the Mission website. Advises DOC management on new trends in website and design fields, and recommends procurement and use of relevant technologies.
