USAID HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE

USAID’s Bureau for Humanitarian Assistance (BHA) leads and coordinates the U.S. Government’s disaster response efforts overseas. Helping people affected by crises is at the core of what we do every day, all over the world. It reflects our values as Americans, demonstrates our global leadership, and makes the world a safer place.

How We Help: USAID helps tens of millions of people by providing critical humanitarian aid to people in need.

Global Presence: USAID humanitarian staff and resources are strategically located around the world.

Strengthening Resilience: BHA doesn’t just respond to humanitarian emergencies. We help lay the initial foundations for longer-term recovery.

IN FISCAL YEAR 2021

USAID responded to 82 crises in 68 countries. We provided $8 billion to help people affected by disasters and conflict, deliver emergency food assistance to refugees, and give communities the tools they need to be resilient to future crises.
